Roadmap

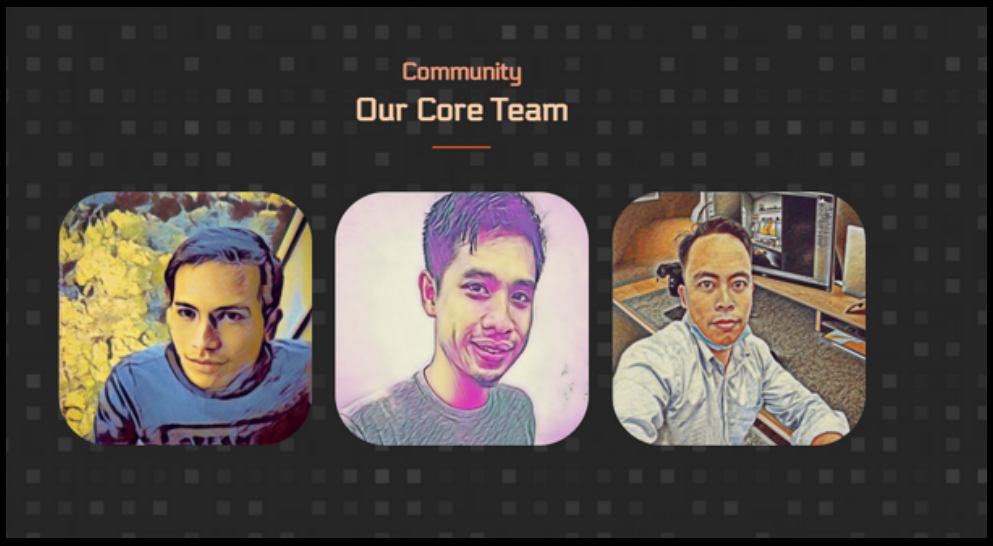

Roadmap was found on the website and is displayed above.

The goals are very healthy and not overpromising like most projects. The only goal left for the current phase is 3k holders and 5k transactions. This is a bit far from the actual numbers at the time this project is being audited.

Team Analysis

Twitter social links are attached to their profiles, their profiles are created on 2010 which create the assumption that they are using their real accounts.

That is generally a really good sign of a project, as most pump and dump projects will hide the team's identity and be very shady with their profiles.

The fact that the project has been alive after so many days is a very positive sign. Most pump and dump projects will dump on their community a few days after launch to maximize profit from the release hype.

Your Score

LIGER is a low risk project, with a small and friendly community. There is room for improvements on the marketing side. The smart contract analysis showed no major warnings/errors. The team is doing an excellent job at communicating with new investors. One controversial thing someone can mention about this project is the very low max transaction amount you can buy/sell. It is currently set to 100B tokens ~$7. Usually people want to invest a lot more so this could be a potential loss opportunity to gain in Market cap and Holders.
